42nd Street

This is an incredible story set in New York of how the depression is hitting Americans in 1933. This production is really about the dancing and the power their dazzling toes have to drum away the blues. Prior to the show will be a great lunch consisting of roast turkey (sliced breast), herb stuffing, cranberry sauce, and turkey gravy, or sautéed tilapia with tomato basil relish. Both entrées are served with roasted shallot mashed potatoes. What a great way to spend a dreary afternoon!
